SCHOLARS MARKET

Currency, in the form of coins and paper bills serves as a unique tool for acquiring goods and services. Money facilitates transactions for items like toys, food, and clothes, enabling us to meet our needs through trade. Developing a comprehension of money is crucial for using it judiciously.

At DPSSec84, a brainstorming session was conducted with the aid of an activity called Scholars Market with an objective to enhance the comprehension of the children. This activity provided hands-on experience in trading money, and teaching participants the proper denominations for buying and selling.

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

DPS 84 believes in experiential learning, an educational approach that emphasizes hands-on, practical experiences to help students gain a deeper understanding of concepts. Keeping this in mind we regularly organize activities which provide students an opportunity to apply theoretical knowledge, improve critical thinking skills, and enhance their communication abilities. An engaging debate took centre stage in social science department of DPS 84, where students delved into the compelling topic of the Relevance of Political Parties in the Context of Corruption Grade VIII observed and learnt from their seniors and eagerly absorbed the intellectual discourse. Passion and eloquence marked the arguments put forth by the debaters. The debate revolved around the pivotal role of political parties in addressing or exacerbating corruption within a society. Thought-provoking insights were shared, shedding light on the mechanisms through which political parties can both mitigate and fuel corruption. What made this debate particularly unique was the involvement of peers in the evaluation process. Judges were selected from the class itself, ensuring an unbiased and holistic assessment. The young judges demonstrated a keen understanding of the arguments and showcased their aptitude for critical analysis. The event not only honed the students' public speaking skills but also fostered an environment of healthy intellectual exchange.
