Festivals are not just about fun; they teach children culture, values, joy, and unity.

Celebrating festivals is very important for children because it supports their overall growth and learning in many ways. Festivals help children learn about their culture, traditions, and values, making them feel connected to their roots. By celebrating with friends, family, and community, children learn sharing, caring, and togetherness. Children learn to respect the different cultures and religions by celebrating festivals.

Tongue – to taste

Skin – to feel

Through rhymes , lines and fun activities , children shared how important our senses are and why we should take care of them. Let's cheer for our tiny learners as they spread knowledge in their own cute way!
